Dance like no one is watching...

Private ballroom dance lessons are key to getting the most out of dance instruction. Private lessons are custom built to teach you the dances you would like to learn at a pace you can be comfortable with. These lessons are especially great for students looking to advance quickly as well as people looking to master a specific dance for a special occasion. Private lessons are beneficial to beginning dancers as well as more advanced students. And no one gets to see you until you've perfected your moves!

Instructor David Fritsch has been ballroom dancing competitively for over three years and has taught in a variety of capacities for almost two years. He is experienced in working with beginning as well as advanced students and is able to demonstrate patterns and techniques as well as choreograph routines for a variety of situations, including wedding dances and competitive routines.
